WE NOMINATE

The 45 members of Princeton University's varsity football squad who this Saturday in ivy-covered Palmer Stadium will help inaugurate still another era in college football while launching Old Nassau's 79th year of gridiron competition. Drawn from 43 communities in 12 states, including the Borough of Princeton in the State of New Jersey, Coach Charles Caldwell's fourth Tiger team personifies the "new look" on the intercollegiate sports scene of 1948-49. A short year ago World War II veterans were in the ascendancy everywhere; this fall—at Princeton at least—they are outnumbered three-to-one, with 23 'teen-agers holding down squad positions.

Regardless of how they might fare percentagewise over the course of a back-breaking schedule, they constitute one of the most remarkable group of men ever assembled on a Princeton athletic field. For the first time in university history, a varsity squad is dominated by high school alumni rather than by undergraduates trained in private preparatory schools, and the honor student, frequently carrying a heavy extra-curricular load in addition to football, is the rule and not the exception. Caldwell, if Phi Beta Kappa potentialities paid off in touchdowns, could field an all-honor roll array.

In a football-conscious period, when institutions of higher education sometimes extend academic credit for pre-college carpentry, this community's town and gown elements—whose interests seem to fuse in football matters—can point to a thoroughly representative university team. On one side of the starting line, a future aeronautical engineer, with summer experience over a drafting board, will be sharing offensive assignments with a pre-medical senior and a minister-to-be. On Sunday, after he has played much of the Brown game, the "minister" will be the guest preacher in a nearby church.

One of the four centers, all of whom were schoolboy backfield luminaries, is an 18-year-old junior enrolled in the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs; another is president of the sophomore class and a third combines lacrosse and wrestling with his football activities and class council affairs. It is revealing to note that the team's most talented backfield performer elected to major in chemical engineering despite the demands of laboratories and classes.

For looking upon football as an integral part of education rather than as education in itself; for upholding traditions that have made Princeton PRINCETON; for earning the right to hold the center of the Princeton stage for the duration of the fall; they are Town Topics' nominees for

Sign - of - Our - Times Note. We have at hand a report that visitors to New Jersey race tracks this year bet some $150,000,000 on the ponies. That is about $50,000,000 more than the cost of the American Revolution, for which we still have something to show.

Even in 1848, 100 years ago, it cost only $34,000,000 to run the U.S. for 12 months. Sign-of-their-times note: government expenditures a century ago were about 20 percent above revenues for the year.

A friend of ours who had put away a lot of his favorite pop Saturday night told us that next day he had seen an airplane land at the Princeton Airport, shed its wings and propellor and drive into town as an automobile. We said "no, that's what too much pop will do to you," but he said, kind of riled, "why don't you call Bill Snow and take his word for it."

Co-owner Snow of the airport (on the Somerville Road) must have been prepared for an inquiring reporter, because he told us succinctly: "The plane, called an Airphibian, landed here Sunday. It is owned and manufactured by Robert Fulton, a direct descendant of the inventor of the steamboat. He has a factory that makes Airphibians in Danbury, Conn.

"When he landed, he simply detached the wings, resting them on a pair of portable stanchions, and the propellor. The plane, a two-seater, then looks like a small racing car. He flies and drives with four wheels, which are not retractable. It's quite a way to get around."

We think it made a special hit with the airport, which provides a taxi service to town for the more unimaginative type of visitor whose plane doesn't do double duty. Incidentally, Mr. Fulton's Airphiblan landed equipped front and back with Connecticut license plates.

Continuing Trend. The building boom rolls on, with construction past the $2,000,000 mark for the first nine months of the year. Latest item of interest is a one-story structure going up at 245 Nassau Street, near the Medical Center, where Skillman & Skillman, Realtors, will move later this Fall. Reorganization of the Twenty Nassau Street building necessitates their departure there.

Still in the rumor stage is the Mt. Vernon Furniture Polish. Brought over from England to Virginia 200 years ago by an ancestor of the Dillard family (its present producer), handed down through generations without any change in formula, Mt. Vernon was finally put on the market at the insistence of friends who begged for the polish after seeing the Dillard furniture. (An insurance adjuster remarked that he had never before seen furniture in such wonderful condition.)

Sales to date are impressive, ranging from the U. S. Senate, which chose it from many samples submitted, through S. S. Pierce, Hammacher-Schlemmer and Miller and Rhoads, to The Exchange of Princeton! One Southern antique dealer provided a typical reaction to Mt. Vernon: when approached, he was completely disinterested, saying he had his own old family formula, would never find anything better, and accepted a sample with complete indifference. When the salesman returned a week later and asked about his sample, the dealer said, "You win. Give me a case today." He re-ordered shortly thereafter (in the middle of the summer.)

About the polish itself: top quality, high-priced ingredients only are used. Generous amounts of linseed oil, pure refined beeswax and cleaning ingredients provide four-way action which cleans, polishes, feeds and preserves. There are no paraffin or other petroleum products—they are sticky, never dry hard and catch dust, while a beeswax finish is hard as rock even though its appearance is soft and satiny.

The longer you use the polish, building up the beautiful beeswax finish and bringing out the grain in the wood, the better the furniture

Sports in Short

Back to the Stadium. As might be expected, Princeton's football faithful will watch Saturday's opener with Brown out of both eyes. In a sense, however, one eye will be evaluating the Tigers as they play the husky Bruin eleven and the other will be measuring their performance against that turned in by Yale last week. Probably not in previous gridiron history has the same team opened the respective Eli and Nassau seasons, and the barometer that Brown symbolizes will be read carefully by Princetonians.

The Providence eleven, presenting a veteran backfield and a huge line, is likely to play a better game against the Orange and Black than it did in helping to launch so auspiciously Herman Hickman's career as an Old Blue. Fumbling the opening kickoff to set up a Yale touchdown, bobbling the ball three more times and subject to frequent penalties, the Bruins made it simpler than necessary for the eager Yales. The latter were, however, quite clearly the better team.

But in losing 28-13 Rip Engle's entry rolled for more than 300 yards, nearly two-thirds of it with passes. For a reason that has escaped our ability to pin it down, Princeton's aerial defense was frustratingly weak all last year and gives promise of continuing the trend. This would seem to be the place to mention that the Finn-to-Nelson pass combination fielded by Brown is one of the Ivy League's best.

Up front, the visitors can point to visible brute strength typified by a squad that presents nine tackles among whom the little guy weighs 205. The starting behemoths in these positions are worth 240 and 250 pounds, respectively, giving Brown an average weight up front of 210. This will be some 15 pounds heavier, man for man, than Dick Colman's line.

If the Tigers receive the opening kickoff, the likely lineup will find Captain Ed Mead and John McKenna at ends, Julian Buxton and Dunc Robertson as the tackles, Don Cohn at center, flanked by

News of the Theatres

FRICK AUDITORIUM

Two pictures made some 35 years ago will open the Group Arts series of film classics this Friday evening at 8 in Frick Auditorium, Washington Road. It was 'way back in 1912 that Mary Pickford starred in "The New York Hat," while the year that saw World War I start was also marked by the vamping of Theda Barl in a classic entitled "A Fool There Was." For something different and delightful, see these old timers.

EUROPA (New Brunswick)

To Live In Peace (Thurs., Fri., Sat.,), acclaimed as 1947's best foreign film, is the weekend offering at this New Brunswick theatre whose "International film carnival" is in its second year. Located on the corner of Somerset and Scott Streets, it is bringing a number of the best European subjects (all with English titles) to the screen. "To Live in Peace," an Italian production giving lip-service to the brotherhood of man, is one of the finest films ever made. Heartwarming, beautifully acted, it is a refreshing change from most of the stuff being ground out in Hollywood today.

THE PLAYHOUSE

Two Guys From Texas (Frl., Sat.) mixes a good deal of song, dance and slapstick routine with a piece about the escapades of a couple of traveling cowboys on a dude ranch. Generally weak.

Rachel and the Stranger (Sun. thru Wed.) was rushed into release well ahead of schedule to capitalize on the nationwide publicity given Robert Mitchum, one of the film's principals, when he was arrested for smoking marijuana cigarettes. In contrast to this lamentable situation, as a picture, it's not bad—spinning a comedy drama about a frontiersman (William Holden) who buys a bondwoman (Loretta Young) to serve as wife and domestic in his early 19th century Ohio home. Mitchum, his best friend, creates an intriguing trl-angle that is broken up by flaming Shawnee arrows.

The Luck of the Irish (Thurs., Fri., Sat.) is a fair-to-middling piece of whimsey about Tyrone Power's odd little friend (Cecil Kellaway) who is really a leprechaun. The Irish elf steers him through a number of adventures and romance with Anne Baxter.

THE GARDEN

Feudin', Fussin' and A-Fightin' (Fri., Sat.) casts Donald O'Connor as a patent-medicine salesman at the turn of the century in very routine comedy about a foot-race staged annually in a small village.

Mr. Blandings Builds His Dream House (Mon., Tues., Wed.) is a repeat showing of the genial comedy about two New Yorkers who set out to remodel a Connecticut farmhouse. Cary Grant, Myrna Loy.

Larceny (Thurs., Fri., Sat.) casts Dan Duryea, John Payne, Joan Caulfield in a melodrama about racketeers who persuade a war widow to raise funds for a memorial to her husband. Action-seekers will have their fill.

looks. The linseed oil keeps the wood soft, preventing drying out and cracking, while the cleaning ingredients keep it clean as a whistle (ink stains are a bit beyond its miraculous cleaning powers, but bacon grease and such are mere bagatelle.)

Mt. Vernon is not cheap, but because the hard beeswax finish does not gum up when dust gets on it, you can dust more often and polish less, thereby making a little polish go a long way. Equally effective for antique, reproductions or modern, Mt. Vernon (which does not require rubbing your arm to the bone) gives your furniture a health as well as a beauty treatment. At The Exchange, 164 Nassau Street.

Rooney English Brushes. A bit of history will provide information of interest to English brush-lovers, in addition to the fact that they are now available at Wilcox's, 20 Nassau Street. R. A. Rooney & Sons have been making fine toilet brushes for well over 150 years in London and have been solely owned and operated by the same family for five generations. Until recently, the greatest part of their production had been taken up by the Empire and other European markets, but due to increased facilities, the brushes are now available in the United States. They are individually made by skilled craftsmen and are custom-built from seasoned, selected wood and bristle properly chosen for each type of brush from world markets.

Now that you know that Rooney brushes have been good for a long time, we'll give you an idea of why. They are all individually made by skilled craftsmen and are custom-built from seasoned, selected wood and bristle, properly chosen for each type of brush from world markets. Most are wire-drawn, which means that each single tuft of bristle is tied by wire and then drawn into the back of the brush by hand. This procedure insures permanence of construction and gives the brush an easy sweep through the hair.

Men's brushes include a massive hand scrub, military sets, genuine badger short shaving brushes, strapped bath styles and a stubby-handled club hair brush with grooves for finger and thumb (very comfortable—we tried it.) For women, there are standard oval hair brushes, wide and narrow, small hand scrubs with finger-fitting curved bristles, long-handled pastel plastic, one-piece bath brushes and, for the long-haired lass, a genuine whalebone model!

Tom Cleveland and Jack Crites as guards. George Chandler, lone sophomore in a starting berth, will call signals and block; Val Wagner, somebody called Sella and John Weber will round out the backfield.

If Charlie Caldwell can field a line defensively, it may consist of Bunnell and Reed, ends; Donan and Koch, tackles; Palin and Zawadsky, guards; and Reichel, center. Leibert (rhymes with Hi! Bert), McCormick, Davison and Powers will all see backfield action. Of this alternate line, all but Koch and its bulwark, Len Palin, are sophomores.

Watch for: Powers and Weber to split the bulky Bruin line; Sella to turn in some gorgeous broken field running as he demonstrates that he ranks with the best in making full use of his interference; promise by the 19-year-old Chandler that he will fill Dick West's shoes as a blocking back; trouble with the right side of the Tiger defensive line if Palin's hip injury bothers him; determined Tiger rushing of the Brown passers because they have a better chance of breaking up aerials in the visitors' backfield than their own.

Look especially to see if Carl Leibert becomes a Saturday ballplayer in October this year instead of in November as he did last, because if his best passing can be alternated with the fine ground game Princeton can unveil, the Tigers will roll. Watch for the possibility that they may have to score four times to win their opener in 1948.

Sport Shorts. Princeton High School's football team opens its home season this Friday afternoon against Red Bank . . . the Little Tigers scored first against Morrisville Saturday night when Larry Friel reached pay dirt in the opening period . . . but they missed their conversion, the Bulldogs came up with seven in the second quarter and that ended the scoring.

Hun School opens its season a week from Saturday against St. Bernard's of Gladstone. . . . 26 players, some of them quite hefty, are working out under Josh Miner and Tom Hartmann, two Princeton alumni who use the Tigers' single wing with T variations.

Princeton dropped the Twin-M title to Blawenberg Sunday afternoon at Cranbury when the last of a five-game series went to the opposition, 14-4 . . . results of the Town Topics baseball contest will be published here next week.
